

Listening Walk

Listening for general sounds in the environment is an important skill before being able to listen to the sounds in words (which is important for speech sound and literacy development). Take this checklist when out and about (or sitting in the garden) and see if your child can hear them all. There is also space for an extra sound...what else can they hear?

